Discipleship Coaching Produces Lasting Fruit

We're emphasizing... a personal God who wants to talk to them in prayer and speak to them through Scripture.

-Parkway UMC Pastor
Matt Neely

“It brings us at Ascending Leaders great joy to see churches like Parkway flourishing and facilitating genuine change in people's walks with God!”

-Ascending Leaders President
Mike Johnson

This spring, we're highlighting the progress of a church in Sugar Land, TX, so you can see one way Ascending Leaders coaches churches to greater discipleship. This church, Parkway UMC, is using a unique partnership between REVEAL for Church and Ascending Leaders. REVEAL offers a survey to help church leaders learn more about their congregants' spiritual lives, and Ascending Leaders provides coaching to help churches know how to respond to their REVEAL survey results. With the guidance of a Discipleship Coach, Parkway took the REVEAL survey in 2016 and then again in 2019. The results showed improvement in over 80% of the discipleship factors measured: that's a big deal for a church in just three years!

The pastor, Matt Neely, reflected on their decision to take the REVEAL the first time. "To be honest, I was a little skeptical," he said. "Can you really graph someone's spiritual development? But when I saw the survey and the kinds of questions it asked, I was a lot more confident. It asks your congregation to reflect on their own spiritual lives with questions like, 'Do you read Scripture daily? Do you pray daily?' The questions allow people to think about their own walks with God. It's much better than us as the church leaders just trying to guess."

REVEAL is aptly named: it shows church leaders aspects of their congregation's walk with God that they might otherwise never realize. The survey is anonymous, of course, but allows congregants to honestly answer questions about their spiritual disciplines and theological beliefs. For example, it asks whether the participants believe in a personal God who is active in their lives. In 2016, Parkway saw that the percent of church congregants who affirmed their belief in a personal God was lower than expected. With their Ascending Leaders coach, the church leaders strategized more ways to effectively communicate that God wants a close relationship with each person and to encourage people toward interacting with Him in their daily lives.

Matt explained, "What we've seen at Parkway is that the best place to put our energy right now is toward encouraging personal spiritual practices. During Lent, for example, we're emphasizing to the congregation that there is a personal God who wants to talk to them in prayer and speak to them through Scripture. They won't even pray or read their Bibles if they don't believe that God is personal."

This is just one of many areas in which the REVEAL survey and coaching helped Parkway. The survey results from this year also showed that a higher percent of the congregation believed the church helped them understand the Bible in depth, develop a personal relationship with Christ, and challenged them to grow and take next steps in their walks with Christ.

Ascending Leaders is honored to partner with an amazing resource like REVEAL for Church. Our coaching is officially recommended by REVEAL to accompany their survey. "The coaching keeps us focused," said Matt Neely. "It helps us to interpret the data: it's not always clear what it means when one number goes up and another goes down. Coaching with Ascending Leaders is helping us figure out our next steps and best practices so we know what to do with those numbers once we have them."

DisciplePaths

Many churches are loaded with programs, ministries, and classes. But are these activities moving people forward in loving God (discipleship)? Ascending Leaders' DisciplePath coaching helps you to streamline and organize your church's activities into a clear discipleship pathway across the four stages of one's spiritual growth. You can then confidently direct individuals to the activity that will best help them at their stage of growth as a disciple.

REVEAL Coaching

When churches decide to get serious about discipleship they often choose a program or focus they believe will help, only to find little tangible fruit. The reason: they did not have an accurate understanding of their church's unique discipleship needs. The REVEAL for Church instrument, a scientifically valid instrument to take the spiritual temperature of your people, has partnered with Ascending Leaders to provide insights on where best to begin working on discipleship in a particular congregation. REVEAL-trained-and-certified Discipleship Coaches guide a church through taking the REVEAL survey and responding to the results with effective action.
